Gabapentin (Neurontin) and Pregabalin (Lyrica): help us find your medicine

You don't need to know all of this. A clear photo of your pharmacy label and one pill is usually enough for us to check.

STEP 1
Read the label. Look for the medicine name, the strength (like 300 mg), and the maker. Words to look for are below.

STEP 2
Find the NDC. It's a 10 or 11-digit number on the label, like 00071-0805-24. If it starts with 00071 (or 0071), 58151 or 59762, tell us.

STEP 3
Send us photos. Text or email a photo of the label and of one pill (the side with printing) to your intake specialist, or have them handy when you call.

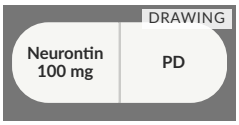

Gabapentin: names on the label

NEURONTIN (the brand), or GABAPENTIN made by GREENSTONE, PFIZER, PARKE-DAVIS, VIATRIS or MYLAN. The label may also say "Generic for Neurontin."

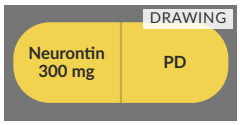

Pregabalin: names on the label

LYRICA or LYRICA CR (the brands), or PREGABALIN made by GREENSTONE, PFIZER, VIATRIS or MYLAN. The label may also say "Generic for Lyrica."

Liquid
Oral solution, 20 mg in each mL. 16 oz (473 mL) bottle.

Lyrica and pregabalin capsules say "Pfizer" on one half and "PGN" with the strength on the other. Lyrica made since late 2024 says "VTRS" instead of "Pfizer". The colors match the photos.

No old bottles? That's OK. Ask your pharmacy for a printout of your prescription history. It lists each fill with the medicine, strength, maker and NDC, often going back many years.
